ABOUT THE ARTIST

Working from her Devon studio overlooking the sea, Catherine Anholt has produced countless drawings and paintings since before graduating with a Master's degree in Fine Art from Royal College of Art in 1985. Working with a visual diary that has been kept since childhood, the artist continues to produce her dreamlike images that evoke the works of Rousseau or Matisse. Her paintings reveal unique textures, perspectives and line work, perhaps reminiscent of Sogdian and early Islamic murals. Anholt has travelled extensively over the years, and her work pays homage to the various visual cultures that have inspired her and her art.

Catherine Anholt is best known for her illustrative work in over 200 children's books – a collaborative project that she has undertaken with her husband Laurence over the last three decades. Their shared passion for creative work and storytelling blossomed in their Uplyme house surrounded by "five acres of jungle." Her painterly oeuvre poignantly reflects her life and career, centring around the themes of motherhood, family, and nature.
